

Preparing for an AS9100 Rev C Audit

A Review of the Impact of AS9101D

May 19
in Bellevue

a one-day seminar presented by:

Fulcrum Associates, LLC

This seminar will help you prepare for your upcoming AS9100 Rev C audit by providing insights into the newly required AS9101D audit process. Just upgrading your QMS to the new AS9100C requirements may not be enough to ensure a successful audit.

All AS9100 audits conducted after July 2011 must be conducted based on the guidelines and requirements specified in AS9101D. The old checklist format of the audit has been eliminated. Now the auditors must determine the effectiveness of your QMS and the corresponding core processes.

This seminar will give you the tools and knowledge needed to prepare for the new audit process. A key element of the new audit requires an assessment of the QMS and its core processes. You will be prepared to demonstrate how you have determined your process effectiveness. You will learn how the new audit process has effectively increased the requirements of AS9100 by changing the focus of the audit. Because the audit requires top management to be interviewed, to avoid nonconformances you should prepare top management for the audits. In this seminar, you will learn how to prepare top management for their required participation in the audit. The new AS9101D requirements add many new forms that must be completed. You will be expected to help the auditor complete these forms. This seminar will help you to learn how to provide the best answer for completing these forms.

Seminar registrants will be included in an on-line AS9100 Rev C Upgrade Group (moderated by John Graham) allowing them to share questions and ideas as they work to prepare for their next audit.
